Saints of the Week

June 1st,
St. Justin,
Martyr

Justin, a layman, exerted a strong influence in the early Church. He went through a difficult intellectual struggle to find Christ. Born in Samaria around 100 A.D., he studied various philosophies and was converted to Christ when about 30 years old. Justin taught in Ephesus, later opened a school in Rome, and wrote defenses of Christianity. He wrote our oldest descriptions of the Baptismal rite and of Sunday Mass. Justin died a heroic martyr's death in about 165, during the persecution of the philosopher Emperor, Marcus Aurelius.

June 2nd,
Sts. Marcellinus and Peter,
Martyrs

These two martyrs are associated with the catacombs-those vast underground burial chambers of special importance for the early centuries of our faith. The catacombs of Marcellinus and Peter, located outside Rome, contain the richest collection of early Christian paintings. A beautiful inscription from Pope Damasus states that Peter and Marcellinus demonstrated edifying serenity in the face of death. They were martyred around 304 or 305. The family of Constantine built a large basilica in their honor.

Lord, send out your spirit and renew the face of the earth.
